El Paso County Commissioners Court to Discuss Future Capital Spending, Seeks Public Input

EL PASO, TX — The El Paso County Commissioners Court is set to embark on an important discussion regarding future capital expenditures. On Monday, January 8th, the court will begin deliberations on the 'FY2024 Multiyear Capital Plan', placing significant emphasis on public insight and participation. The meeting is scheduled from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., in a hybrid format and in person, at the County Commissioners Courtroom located at 500 E. San Antonio, 3rd Floor.

Following the approach of last year's successful outreach for considering capital needs, the County plans to continue its extensive public engagement. Last year's process included over 20 public meetings and discussions with civic organizations, such as rotary clubs and chambers of commerce, ensuring widespread community input. The upcoming series of discussions and meetings aims to mirror this inclusive approach.

Executive Director of Strategic Planning, Jose Landeros, highlights the significance of the upcoming Commissioners Court meeting. "We are preparing to begin a process that considers all of our capital needs over the next several years," Landeros said. "We are going to start off with a presentation that outlines what the year ahead looks like."

The discussion will potentially cover enhancements to parks, public safety, and other crucial County services. However, before making any decisions, the Commissioners Court is keen on hearing from the community. El Paso County residents are encouraged to attend the meeting, either in person or virtually, to share their perspectives and priorities.
